Not illustrated. 1921 Excerpt: .of the entire thalamo-cortical radiation was interrupted within the posterior limb of the internal capsule (fig. 66). The split-like lesion (L in the figure) is located between the dorsal corner of the thalamus and the Sylvian sulcus, the level of the injury approximately corresponding with the planes of figures 33, 34 and 52 of both foregoing experiments. Interrupted by the injury, a dense bundle of ascending thalamo-cortical fibers (sr) degenerated completely, while other bundles of the thalamo-cortical radiation remained normal. The bundle which was thus caused to degenerate, is identical with the posterior or the caudal segment or fan of the thalamo-cortical radiation originating in the caudal thalamic segment and supplying the caudal half of the somato-sensory cortex behind the central sulcus (shaded areas in fig. 3). Bundles of the radiation remaining normal are those springing from the oral or Fig. 3, Experiment III. External (upper figure) and internal (lower figure) face of the monkey s hemisphere showing the location and extent of the two projection regions of the cerebral cortex found in this experiment (shaded areas). Somatic sensory region behind the central sulcus (C) and above the fornicate sulcus (Fc); visual area in the upper lip of the horizontal branch of the ealcarine fissure l- culr and in front of the ascending branch of that fissure. Differently shaded areas indicate difference in number of afferent fibers. Small dotted area in the posterior portion of the temporal lobe represents the superficial lesion through which the knife...
